Money Limits Work on Dam

PORTLAND, Ore., March 19 (AP)—Congressional approval of $5,000,000 for McNary (Umatilla) dam would start work along the Columbia river site, but not actual construction of the dam itself, the Army engineers said today.

A sizeable amount of the fund, recommended by the senate appropriations committee, would be used to move the Columbia river highway (US 30) and railroad tracks on the Oregon and Washington sides of the Columbia to higher ground.

The money would also finance construction of buildings needed for the giant project; barracks and houses for workers; warehouses; mess halls; other buildings.
